Tell Santa Their Wants For Carmel

Busy Santa Claus put the Pine Cone editor to work for him this week to find out what the members of the official city family want him to bring the City of Carmel for Christmas.

Honored to be Santa's secretary, we got on the telephone, soft pencil in hand, and wrote down carefully what the men who run Carmel want from Kris Kringle.

Mayor John Chitwood: "Santa Claus can bring a big red sleighful of the fuller realization of the values of our community which give us such a pleasant place in which to live; also an expression of gratitude to the many people in all walks of life who have contributed time and energy both in the past and in the present to shape the well-being of Carmel."

Councilman Allen Knight wants more parks, trees and parking lots. "I won't mention parking meters," he added in deference to the seasonal spirit of Peace on Earth.

"A permanent zoning ordinance completely satisfactory to the business people and the residents," Councilman Jim Buffington wants.

"It's been so long," he says wistfully. "When I first came on the council I wanted to help, and we haven't done much."

No, as Street Commissioner, he doesn't want anything special for his own department.

"We're getting along all right."

Councilman Gunnar Norberg requests Santa to bring "more awareness of the threats to Carmel's identity and a willingness of the citizens to stand up and be counted.

"A loss of any part of Carmel's individuality is a loss to all of it."

He mentioned the Area Planning Commission which he believes is working toward peninsula-wide unified city services and a single peninsula school system.

Councilman Tom May would like a 50 star flag for city hall, and thinking in terms of the long hours spent up to and sometimes past midnight at city council sessions, he's putting his order in with Santa for "a good all-hours coffee shop for after meetings."

George Willox, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission, would like Santa to bring "some appreciation and understanding on the part of the community, and support for what the planning commission is trying to do about zoning and parking.

"They're a long-suffering lot," he said, referring to his planning commissioners. "They work hard for the welfare of the community."

An order to put Santa on his mettle comes from City Clerk Larry Rose. All he wants the good Saint to bring to the City of Carmel is more revenue and less taxes.

Chief of Police Clyde Klaumann wants a parking lot in the business district.

Isn't there something more that would make life easier for the police department?

"Nope," said the Chief. "We're

Folk Singing Has Its Own Underground, Group In Highlands Finds

BY JOHN UPTON

Have you ever been to a Hootenanny?

All right. Let me put it this way. Do you have any idea what a Hootenanny is?

I hadn't, until last Saturday evening when I dropped in at the Highlands home of Monterey Peninsula College philosophy instructor Mark Goldes. His house clings to the hillside high above the Highlands Inn, on a narrow, tortuous road I found lined with automobiles. Inside, someone was singing:

"Black girl, black girl, where will you go?
I'm goin' where the cold winds blow,
In the pines, in the pines,
Where the sun never shines,
I was shivering the whole night through . . ."

Beneath the voice was the jangle of guitars and the oomp of a string bass.

"Welcome, welcome," said Goldes with an amiable grin as he opened the door. The living room of his compact, modern house was clogged with people and stringed instruments. It looked and sounded as if 22 irresponsible, music-loving burglars had broken into a pawn shop. Several of the guitarists had chairs, but the rest of the group sat on the floor on pillows, folded blankets, and a couple of air mattresses.

Goldes was holding a mandolin with two strings missing. He waved it genially in the direction of his guests.

"What you see here," he said, "is a Saturday Night Hootenanny. In folk-song parlance, that means a get-to-gether where singers and instrumentalists and just plain enthusiasts gather to compare notes and have an evening of their favorite kind of music."

Two guitarists and half a dozen young men and women singers launched into a lively version of Darlin' Corey, and my host had to raise his voice to be heard.

"Folk-singing parties are the coming thing," he went on as he fitted a new string to the mandolin. "We've been meeting every Saturday for about a year now, and more people show up every time. Some are professional performers, some are college students from MPC and Berkeley, and others are just people passing through. We've had visiting singers from Alaska, Germany, Dutch South Africa, and even the Fiji Islands. We have no direct communication with other groups elsewhere, but the word spreads. I suppose you might say folk-singing has its own underground."

Darlin' Corey came to an end, and the audience clamored for John Henry. A burly young man picked up a massive instrument that turned out to be a twelve-string guitar capable of producing a deep, rhythmic roar, and obliged with a stentorian rendition of the folk classic.

"That's Pat Foster, a traveling professional singer. One of the best in his field."

Foster jangled to an abrupt halt in the peculiar, indifferent manner folk singers have. It was like turning off a machine. His performance met with wild applause.

One of the guitarists, Sunset School art teacher Joe Broadman, relinquished his instrument to the serious young bassist, who wove a sensual and thoughtful accompaniment behind a singer named Phil as he yearned his way through Saint Louis Blues.

Broadman, who lives with his wife and two small children in a house he designed and built himself near the mouth of Carmel Valley, told me that folk singing and architecture are his two passions.

"I was the original organizer of these song-fests," he said. "But they became so popular that there wasn't enough room in my house. I was also responsible for bringing Josh White and Martha Schlamme to Sunset Auditorium. This is the first time I've tried anything quite so ambitious along this line, and it remains to be seen whether Carmel audiences will turn out to hear folk singers."

By this time Goldes had been informed by one of the guests that he had installed the wrong string on the mandolin. As he removed it he said, "I don't know how to play this thing, but I'm certainly going to learn. Have you ever heard a Blue Grass Band? Well, they use the mandolin in a way that's really marvelous. Wonderful instrument."

At the moment an attractive young red-headed girl was exploring the lyrics of Barbara Allen in a high, sweet voice.

"That's Janet Barson, a Carmel girl who now lives in San Francisco," a young lady sitting next to me told me.

As the evening progressed, it became evident that folk singing as a genre embraces a wide variation of types. These run the gamut from jocular little pieces like The Fox, through spirituals and bitter statements of economic evil such as 'Leven Cent Cotton, to musical treatises on organized labor like Which Side Are You On?:

"Come all you good workers,
Good news to you I'll tell
Of how the good old union
Has come in here to dwell."

As performed at a Hootenanny, what these songs lack in syntax they make up in vigor and volume.

Toward the end of the evening Mark Goldes passed out mimeographed lyrics for a group of traditional Christmas songs, which Ray Penney had selected for her Unitarian Sunday School folk singing group. These included Cold Is the Morning (Czech), Un Flambeau, Jeannette, Isabella (French), What Child Is This? (English), O Sanctissima (Italian), and The Twelve Days of Christmas.

What Child Is This? seemed to be the general favorite for ensemble singing, possibly because its melody is that of Greensleeves, an old standard in the folk singer's repertoire. It was curiously satisfying to hear this tender musical statement of faith sung by a group of men and women who a generation ago would have been called "Bohemians."

"You've probably noticed an interesting thing tonight," Goldes said as I was leaving. "And that is that we serve no liquor at these parties. Just coffee. We want the parents of the younger kids to feel that this is a good place for them to be on a Saturday night. I remember one visitor a couple of weeks ago who told me as he was leaving, "You know, this is the first time in years I've had a really good time on Saturday night without a drink in my hand."

CAR FIRE

A new car belonging to Edward F. Dortmund caught fire yesterday morning at 11:35 o'clock on Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. The Carmel Fire Department extinguished the blaze which was confined to burnt wiring, paint and undersealing.

When the car which had only been driven 50 miles caught fire, Dortmund leapt out and the vehicle hit another car belonging to Robert John Oberfohren, damaging the rear end.

Letters..

The Esperanto Club,
Box 792, Placerville, Calif.

Editor, Pine Cone Cymbal:

We are much concerned over the Russians hitting the moon, and rightly so. If they can hit the moon, they can hit New York or Los Angeles.

Why are they so far ahead of us with their missile program? One reason is that they emphasize science in their schools, while we spend fabulous sums teaching four or five languages, of little or no practical value, out of the 2700 languages of the world. For a fraction of that cost we could have a universal language.

Russia formerly suppressed Esperanto because they hoped to make Russian the universal language, but apparently decided that a universal language now would be a big help to them in the world trade war that faces us, so relaxed their restrictions and there are now over 1000 Esperantists in the Russian city of Gorky alone. Russia knows the value of a universal language and works to acquire it —while we dawdle. If all the world but us acquires a common language, we would be at a tremendous disadvantage.

We have always considered Russia a backward nation, but we'd better wake up and quit patting ourselves on the back or we may get some rude surprises.

Anyone wanting more information about the universal language may ask at their library or write us for some free material.

—H. E. Dillinger.

I was under the impression that the Russians put as much emphasis on language teaching as science in their schools, and I have never thought of them as a backward nation, culturally; but if you are right, and they are about to eliminate the study of foreign languages in favor of Esperanto, they will soon become a backward nation.

GARY DART CHAMPION

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. Rita Bradburn, her son, Gary, reports that he is the dart champion of Abersock, a tiny village in Wales. The only American in the community, Gary recently entered the dart tournament at the village pub and emerged as victor amidst hails of congratulation from the menfolk of the locality. He also won seven "bob" (seven shillings). His prowess amazed the Welshmen and he found himself a celebrated person in the community.

Editor's Column

This is hungry week. Six of the smaller restaurants which cater to the work-day needs of habitual eating-out Carmel residents are closed. The strain on the ones remaining open began to tell Monday evening.

A restaurant that starts serving dinner at 5:00 o'clock was out of lamb, the "special" for the evening, ham and roast beef at 6:00 o'clock. Hamburger, liver and bacon, and meat loaf were still available. I had eggs over easy.

At 6:15 the supply of hamburger, liver and bacon and meat loaf was exhausted along with pudding and pie. At 6:30 the restaurant was "closed," and Carmelites who for years have counted on this restaurant for their evening meals three or four times a week were turned away.

Several restaurants over the hill which local diners-out patronize for variety are also closed "for the holidays."

The druggists, with their traditional sense of responsibility to the community, have a schedule worked out so that at least one drug store is open Sunday.

Some of the smaller restaurants which cater to the home-town "regulars" could postpone their closing until January, or take their vacations in November.

Those which heroically remain open should anticipate the pressure which will be put on them and be prepared to handle it.

Out of food at 6:30!

Much of the above arises out of huff. The way Carmel business people shut up shop and go off on "buying trips" and vacations to Europe, Asia, Alaska, or Yosemite National Park erodes us with envy.

The Pine Cone shuts up for nothing. Floor, fire, blizzard or whatever the postal service is supposed to endure while the mail goes through a newspaper "of general circulation," legal status, and second class mailing privileges has to go through, too, or darn well lose its second class mailing privilege and legal status.

If we burned down Tuesday, you'd get your Pine Cone Thursday afternoon as usual. If we couldn't get in touch with Howard Timbers, wherever he is skiing, to borrow the key for his shop, we'd get the Pine Cone out on the high school or city hall fancy reproducing machinery. It might look like the Padre (and that's far from bad) or the minutes of the city council meeting, but it would be the Pine Cone and you'd get it.

If we have to grub away we might as well glamorize it with a little bragging.

Anyway, Virginia Shaw has promised to bring us some desert holly from Palm Springs, and five Carmelites have promised to send up picture postcards from five points of the compass.

And we have a living Christmas tree, two and a half feet high, growing in a pot on our desk. It's Monterey Pine and on December 26 we shall plant it in a corner of our alley behind the Pine Cone building, and start a plant a pine in your alley campaign in our first issue of 1960.

Merry Christmas, God Bless You All. —Wilma Cook.

Kippy Stuart

Mrs. Florence Partello "Kippy" Stuart died on Saturday at her home on Lazarro Drive on Hatton Fields Mesa after a lingering illness. She was the author of a series of children's books centered about Piang, the young son of a Moro chieftain, whom she knew as a child in the Philippine Islands.

Kippy Stuart also wrote a garden column for The Pine Cone until illness forced her to give it up. After the death of her husband, Colonel George Washington Stuart, (USA ret.), in 1948. Mrs. Stuart studied landscape gardening and became a licensed landscape architect. She earned her livelihood at this profession until cancer, which she endured bravely for the past year, forced her to relinquish her second career.

Mrs. Stuart, the daughter of an Army officer, was born in Fort Kough, Montana, on September 6, 1884. In her childhood and youth and after her marriage to Colonel Stuart she lived at various Army posts.

It was during one of these periods that she met Piang, the hero of her books. She won the Literary Guild book prize and also the Ford Foundation "best of the year" award for her Piang series.

Mrs. Stuart talked to numerous children's groups in this area about her childhood experiences in the Philippines, as well as appearing frequently at writers' and librarians' gatherings on the West Coast.

After she became a landscape architect she spoke to many groups interested in gardening and worked to beautify this area as well as to retain its natural character. The Pine Inn patio gardens are examples of her work in the field of landscaping.

In the near future, Reader's Digest will publish an article by Mona Williams of Carmel in which Mrs. Williams tells why Kippy Stuart is the most unforgettable character she has known. Kippy knew of this pending publication and it gave her great delight.

She had lived in Carmel for the past 20 years, coming here after her husband retired from active Army duty. They built one of the first homes on Hatton Fields Mesa. Kippy Stuart designed, planted and cared for the extensive garden about her home.

She is survived by a niece, Mrs. Betty Peyton of Carmel.

Private funeral services were held on Monday morning.

Colin Alderman

Colin Alderman, a Carmel resident for the past 25 years, collapsed on Friday afternoon, presumably of a heart attack, while working as a carpenter on a construction job at Fourth Avenue and Carmelo Street. A Carmel Fire Department resuscitator crew endeavored unsuccessfully to revive him after being called to the scene at 4:35 o'clock.

Mr. Alderman was born in Sydney, Australia, 63 years ago. He was a building contractor on the San Francisco Peninsula before moving to Carmel. His home was at Monte Verde Street and Second Avenue. He was a member of Carpenters Local 1323.

A brother, Fred Alderman, living in Australia, is his only surviving relative.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in the Dorney and Farlinger Memorial Chapel with the Reverend Carleton E. Whitehead of the Church of Religious Science officiating.

PADRE CAGERS TRIM GONZALES SPARTANS

Bouncing back after a 47-41 loss to the Gilroy Mustangs, the Carmel High Varsity basketball squad put together a solid team effort to drub the hard-trying Gonzales Spartans, 66 to 42, for its second league win of the current season. The win over the Spartans gives the Padres a share of first place in the B-division of the CCAL since the King City Mustangs are also undefeated in two outings. The Mustangs and Padres clash in a showdown battle at the Carmel pavilion on January 15th.

A fine 25-point scoring effort by Russ Wise coupled with an aggressive ball-hawking defense proved to be the undoing of the Gonzales squad. The skinny Padre scoring ace was deadly on the crip shot and his soft one-handers from the outside were hitting with professional accuracy. Carmel's tall rebounding crew of Wise, John Wilkin, Chris Wilkin, and Toby Edson did a masterful job on the boards, sweeping 18 off the defensive board and getting 14 on offensive rebound. Mike Draper and Fred Bucher, Carmel's two pony guards, turned in top playmaking jobs and spearheaded the pressing Padre defense. So effective was the Red & Gray defense that the visitors had difficulty getting the ball across the center line and frequently lost the ball to the quick-handed Padres.

The comparatively small Gonzales team was led by senior forward Joe Sargenti who pumped through 20 points with an accurate one-hand set shot. Sargenti picked up 34 points in the Pacific Grove game the previous week and is pushing Wise for the top scoring spot in the B-division.

Coach Hadley Hicks' lightweight crew is still looking for its first win of the current season as the Little Spartans outsnookered the Little Padres, 39 to 24, in a sloppy display of the hardwood sport. Slightly reminiscent of the fifth period gym class, neither team showed an organized offense and relied on a run, shoot, and fall back policy. The Little Spartans showed a fine individual performer in Gil DeSantiago who hit for 19 points to lead his mates to victory. Jim Miles, Pete DePetra, and Frank Bucher led the Little Padres in their unsuccessful bid to get over the Gonzales limiteds.

Carmel's junior-varsity gang picked up win number three at the expense of the Gonzales reserves as Jim Brown, Frank Mayo, and Mike Dunham showed the way in the scoring department. Coach Dick Lawitzke's charges took command at the opening tip and surged to a 26-12 halftime lead and were in front 43-26 at the final buzzer.

No activity for the Carmel cagers during Christmas vacation but they return to action on January 5th for a triple-header with the strong Monterey High quintets. Monterey is tabbed to win the A-division of the CCAL and Carmel enjoys the same distinction in the B-division so the meeting with the Toreadores should be an interesting show.

THROUGH THE HOOP

Just as expected San Jose City College and the MPC Lobos wound up playing in the finals of the Coast Junior College Tournament played at Fort Ord last weekend. The San Jose quintet was a slight favorite to pick up all the gold but the scrappy Lobos upset the dope bucket by clipping the Jaguars, 65 to 55, in the best game of the tournament. Led by Bill Russo, a diminutive guard with Cousy-like moves, the Lobos took the lead late in the first half and kept in front the rest of the way. Russo and Dave Garth led the Lobo scorers, each hitting for 15 markers. Andy Garth and Russo were honored by being placed on the All-Tournament team and Russo garnered additional honors by winning the Most Valuable Player award. Vallejo Junior College took third place in the tourney with Menlo winning the consolation trophy by downing Hartnell.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

Bach's A Christmas Cantata, one of several he wrote for Christmas, was given in the Wayfarer Church last Sunday as a Christmas Worship Service. It is a composition especially appealing in its harmonic atmosphere that suggests so clearly the wide-open spaces and mystery of a star-lit night, and melodic themes that inspire with their purity and expression. Organist Carruth's playing brought out all the beauty as well as the good delivery of the Choir whose general quality of voice quite suited the work, conducted by John Farr. Mr. Farr also sang the baritone solo, So appears Thy Natal Day, with his happy musical sense. The Aria for tenor Lord, My Thanks to Thee was sung by Donald G. Roberts, and Lord, I sing Thy Name by contralto Mrs. Nello Torri, followed by the final Chorus Alleluia. It was an excellent performance.

Bach's Cradle Song from his Christmas Oratorio was included in the opening Prelude to the service, as well as Noel by Couperin and A Song is born, Alleluia, by Kreckel; and Mary's Slumber Song, a poem by E. Leigh Mudge arranged to Brahm's music by C. C. Robinson, one of our Carmel resident composers, whose many published songs and choir music are well known, as is Dr. Mudge's literary work. All together, with the clear Scriptural Reading and address of Dr. Fillmore Gray (whose articulation and voice projection is a lesson for those who do not completely enunciate their words), and the singing by the congregation of O Little Town of Bethlehem and Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning, much inspiration was given all for a happy Christmas week. Regrettably I was unable to hear the musical services of the Presbyterian church, which gave so much pleasure last year.

The San Francisco Symphony Association announces that David Ostrakh, the eminent Soviet violinist, will make his West Coast debut with the Symphony in a special non-subscription concert, Monday evening, January 4, in the Opera House at 8:30 o'clock. He will play two violin concertos, the Beethoven D major and the Tschaikowsky D major. Rossini's Overture to La Gazza Ladra will also be played by the orchestra.

A free Christmas Concert was performed December 16 at the Wayfarer Fellowship Hall by the Monterey College Chorus under Dr. Harvey Marshall's direction. Angie Machado was at the piano and G. W. Iverson at the Wurlitzer

NEIL FLEW HOME AHEAD OF THE SUN

On Saturday morning Neil Giarratana said good-bye to his aunts in Edinburgh, Scotland, flew to London, took a jet polar flight to San Francisco, then another plane to Monterey airport where he greeted his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Giarratana, at 10:00 o'clock Saturday evening. He had traveled west 6,000 miles just ahead of the sun so that it was the same day when he landed in California. Night did not fall till he reached the western United States.

Neil has been at Stanford-in-Germany since June. He left Stuttgart on December 10 and visited Paris, London and Scotland before flying home. He will return to the Palo Alto Stanford campus to complete the third quarter of his sophomore year after Christmas.

Planners Pleased With Plantings In New Developments

Planning commissioners on January 20 will act on the Pine Inn off-street parking park for 21 cars. Last week commissioners asked that the plans for the development be changed to eliminate one entrance. Harrison Godwin, Pine Inn proprietor, happily endorsed their suggestion. Architect Glenn Kearns will submit revised plans for action next month.

Situated on two lots at the northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Monte Verde Street, the parking facility will be curved on the inside boundaries to permit planting ten pine trees, according to Mr. Godwin and Mr. Kearns. A grayed grapestake fence, concealed by street-side planting, will hide cars from the street. Total planting space equals 19.02 percent of the site.

Commissioners commended Mr. Godwin for the plans. Mr. Godwin thanked commissioners for their praise. "This is truly Christmas," said Commissioner Secretary Larry Rose.

Commissioners approved a restaurant, six shop, one apartment and three office court development on Lincoln Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. Blair Development company will construct the complex designed by George Willox. The June Simpson restaurant now stands on this property. Blair Development Company members are Emmett Blair, Andrew McKeown, Corinne Swallwell and June Simpson.

Commissioners were pleased with the open court plan of the development, planted with trees; total area of open space 40 percent of the site with 10½ percent of this area planted.

They granted building permits to Merle and Thompson McCrea for a masonry wall at the front entrance to Tally Ho Inn and to the Girl Scout Council for a second-floor bathroom at the Girl Scout House.

ZEALA WRIGHT AT CARMEL TOWN HOUSE

On December 30, Miss Zeala Wright will sing at the Carmel Foundation Town House at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Wright, well known in Carmel as a soloist, received much of her musical training in Stockton at the College of the Pacific. Currently she is working with Nancy Ness Bowman of Carmel.

Mrs. C. A. Broaddus will be the accompanist. The program will include: Come unto Him, from The Messiah, Handel; The Virgin's Slumber son, Max Reger; Sweet Marie and Her Baby, John Jacob Niles; Christ was Born on Christmas Day, German carol; The Holy City, Stephen Adams.

Angel Street Keeps Audience In Thrall At Golden Bough Circle

BY VIRGINIA SHAW

Patrick Hamilton's durable melodrama Angel Street is given a solidly cast, expertly staged production at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, where it opened last week end.

Though fairly simple-minded as psychological thrillers go these days, Angel Street (which made a spellbinding film some years ago under its original title, Gaslight) builds suspense steadily from curtain to curtain, and is spiced with many chills and not a few chuckles.

Heroine of the play is the distracted Mrs. Manningham, who is being sadistically and methodically driven out of her gentle wits by a husband whose obsession is a collection of rubies hidden somewhere in their dreary demesne in London. The lady's life and sanity are ultimately preserved through the intervention of a brisque bloodhound of a detective called Sgt. Rough, but not before the audience has been titillated by several cliff-hanging climaxes.

The always effective Rosamond Beck-Meyer gives a touching and tremulous performance as poor bedevilled Mrs. Manningham, and John Lenk, in an impressive acting debut, is appropriately cold and smoothly sinister as her heartless spouse. The saucily seductive maid, Nancy, is neatly played by Sandra Powers, and Myrtle Edgerton brings warmth and spirit to the part of the sympathetic housekeeper, Elizabeth.

Chief among the assets of the Golden Bough production, however, is Mason Wright, a sort of grand old enfant terrible of the local stage, whose devillishly polished presence and growly monotone delivery have been much missed in the past year. Mr. Wright toys with the meaty part of Dective Rough like a gourmand with a succulent entrecote, swallowing some morsels of dialogue whole and chewing over others with obvious relish. His is the performance of a practiced pro, full of outrageous bits of business and flourishes which the author may, or may not, have intended; Sgt. Rough emerges as a raffish old body with mannerisms suggesting both Mrs. Watson and Caligari. The East Coast's loss is Carmel's gain: it is good to have Mr. Wright back again.

Frederick Rider has directed Angel Street with due respect for its subtleties of suspense and atmosphere, and Ronnie Cummings has prepared an excellent period setting for its Victorian haunts. Others assisting in the production are Mike Walsh and Mary Hicks, production assistants, and Connie Going, properties; special recognition is also deserved by the anonymous expert who manages the lighting, so important to the play.

Angel Street is a satisfying and absorbing entertainment, and it plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at 8:30 o'clock in the arena theatre.

GOLDEN BOUGH CIRCLE ALIGHT ON DECEMBER 27

The Golden Bough Circle Theatre will not be dark over Christmas weekend. Although there will be no plays on stage, the Circle will be very bright on Sunday evening, December 27, with the beauty of Alexander G. Weygers' color slide showing of Artography. He will present two shows: A World of Beauty at 7:00 o'clock, and Tide Pools and Beaches at 9:00 o'clock.

Sports . . .

athletes. Taking their shots with the Merchants are Dave Gray, George Wightman, Mike Mosolf, John Farrell, Dick Weer, Walt Frey, Merv Sutton, Bob Wise, Bobby Updike, and skipper Overin . . . Gilroy High School which bolted to the A-division of the CCAL last season visited the Carmel High gym last week and proved it belongs in the A-league by winning a pair from the Carmel squads. Bob Hagen's rangy varsity clipped Coach Dan Yurkovich's crew, 47 to 41, and the Gilroy lights rang up an easy win over the inexperienced Padre Babes. Gilroy showed a precise attack, featuring excellent teamwork and well-designed play patterns which usually paid off with a clean shot at the basket. The Mustangs will be on display at the Carmel pavilion later in the season when they take part in the annual Carmel Tournament . . . If he keeps up the pace shown in the first four games, Russ Wise is a cinch to become the highest single-season scorer in the history of Carmel High School. The accurate-shooting senior is averaging better than 20 points per game and has hit better than 30 in two games. George Wightman, a member of the championship 1956 aggregation, holds the season record with 360 points . . . Pete Peletta, MPC hoop mentor, believes in keeping his charges busy over the holidays. The ambitious Lobo cagers are traveling to Coalinga for a joust with the valley junior college and will move from Coalinga to Santa Maria where they will participate in the Hancock Tournament on December 28, 29 and 30th. Off their showing in the recently-completed JC Coast Tournament, the Lobos could go all the way in the tougher Hancock tourney.

BOXING AT FRESNO STATE

David Vincent is a candidate for the Fresno State College 1959-60 boxing squad. A freshman business administration student at the school, he will box in the light heavyweight division. This fall David was first string center on Fresno State's freshman football team. At Carmel High School he lettered in football, basketball and track. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Vincent.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

A very merry Christmas to you from the staff of the library, and may your holiday happiness be enhanced by the reading of good books. This is a season for cooking and eating which is often followed by a season for regretting. Forgetting the aftereffects, and concentrating on the cooking, we have three new cookbooks for you. This seems to be the era of the conversational cookbook. Recipes are combined with chatting about foods, possible combinations of foods, and backgrounds against which foods are best served and enjoyed. The Blueberry Hill Cookbook is such a one. Elise and John Masterton have an inn somewhere in Vermont, and there Elise built a reputation for heavenly foods which can be produced in your own earthly kitchens, from ingredients purchased in the local markets. Not difficult, just discriminating.

Perhaps even more discriminating is the person who follows the advice given in Good Cooking by Nicholas Roosevelt. He calls his books "a companion to cooking rather than a cookbook, and certain it is that anyone wishing to become a good cook could do no better than to make a companion of this latest volume from the pen of our neighbor down the coast.

Myra Waldo has completed a Diners' Club Cookbook. The recipes come from famous restaurants all over the country. The book is attractive, with well spaced largeish print and an excellent index, and the recipes are wonderful. So much for cookbooks!

There are eleven new novels this week, and among them are several mysteries. Included in what librarians call "straight fiction" are two which deserve mention. The one is Children of the Wolf by Alfred Duggen. The children are Romulus and Remus, and the story is that of the founding of Rome.

The other novel is The Street of the Laughing Camel by Ben Lucien Burman. This is a funny one, and Mr. Burman has been compared to Mark Twain in his handling of his story, which is that of young Yance Collum who opened a laundry in Algeria. The author lived for some time in Africa and while there he collected material for this book. Speaking of funny ones, we have Bennett Cerf's The Laugh's on Me, you will remember.

We have some call for information on sewing and the making of clothing at home, and with this in mind, we have How to Design Your Own Dress Patterns by Adele Margolis.

Did we wish you a merry Christmas—yes we did—but let's do it again. Merry Christmas Everybody!

MESSENGERS

You can not see the Angels—
But they are everywhere
The white veil of the snow falls
Their wings have touched the air!

You can not hear them singing
Earth's innocence is white—
Yet you can hear the Christmas Chimes
Ring into the night!

—MARY ANN PUTMAN

CHRISTMAS

The world is strangely beautiful tonight
A single star is lit above the pines—
The earth is dark and silent. Nothing shines
But that serene evangel of the light.
It almost seems as though a voice should speak
Among the listening leaves; as though the sky
Held some great tidings eloquent on high
But still inaudible to those who seek.

Perhaps the holy season drawing near
Has shone ahead its message from the star,
And filled the night with innocence and love.
It is the heart that feels the mystery here
And knows beyond the earthy things that are
The shining evidence of those above.

—DORA HAGEMEYER.

CHRISTMAS AGAIN

This is the eve
When Love is a candle
With star-hallowed light
In the mangers of men.

This is the night
When Love is a carol;
Angelic, sublime,
Over stables again.

This is the time
When Love is a greeting,
Sweet myrrh of the heart,
Frankincese from a pen.

—CONSTANCE WALKER

"I WILL LIFT UP MINE EYES"
(Psalm 121)

Sharply cut
Against the sky,
The mountain
Forms an altar of strength,
With yucca candles;
And above it at dawn
Is a stained-glass window.

—CLAUDINE KEINONEN

Music On The Peninsula

Organ. As the opening number, the seventeenth century Buxtehude was on this program in a Passacaglia played by Ernest Tweedy, with excellent tone and power.

Two old works by Healey Willan, one in Latin, three excerpts from the Messiah, the Gloria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, Festival Te Deum by Britten and a Negro Bell Carol by Willis Lawrence James comprised the main vocal selections which were interspersed with Scriptural readings about the coming of Jesus as commentaries prepared by Max Tadlock of the Department of speech, and executed by Elinor Garay, Ysabel Matney, Michael Doram and Jay Chand with good quality voices and articulation. Bill Savage, bass, sang the Handel solo, The Trumpet Shall Sound, accompanied by Carole Crumpley, and Donna Keeling, sang the contralto solo, O Thou that tellest glad tidings, followed stirringly by the Chorus.

The Negro Bell Carol with Irene Fernandez as soloist was a highlight, given with fine modulation at the finish, and Edward Dayton, baritone, was soloist in the Britten Te Deum. Pitch, diction and attack were good from the whole Chorus of fifty voices. Attendance was beyond the capacity of the hall, so that many had to stand on the stairs and against the wall. Marshall requested participation from the audience in singing four carols which all enjoyed. The Brass Ensemble under Erricson's direction was well played. It was composed of trumpets, french horns, baritone horn, trombones and recording bass, which stirred up plenty of sound in Hindemith's Morgenmusik.

Pine Needles

Sue Rossner, Skip Lloyd Wed

White poinsettias arranged with magnolia boughs decorated the candlelit altar and banked the chancel rail of St. Alban's Episcopal Church in West Los Angeles on Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Sue Andrews Rossner and Francis Peabody Lloyd. Christmas wreaths trimmed with red ribbon bows were spaced on the church walls and sprays of huckleberry tied with red satin marked the ends of the central aisle pews. Untrimmed trees stood at each side of the altar and in the nave. Carols, played on the organ while the guests gathered, added to the Christmas atmosphere.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Reverend C. E. Crowther, assisted by two red and white robed altar boys at 4:30 o'clock. Chimes heralded the entrance of the wedding party to the Lohengrin wedding march and marked the several steps of the service.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, George Cornelius Rossner of West Los Angeles. Her princess style white taffeta gown had tiny inserts of lace at the front of the portrait neckline of the long-sleeved fitted bodice. The full skirt swept into a chapel train over which spread her floor length ivory antique Irish lace veil which also framed her face and fell over her shoulders in soft folds from a small coronet headband. Her bouquet was a cascade sunburst of white carnations.

Matron of honor was the groom's older sister, Mrs. Nathaniel Baylis of Menlo Park. Bridesmaids were Kathryn King of San Francisco, Mrs. John Russo, Jeanne Doran and Rye Otero, all of Los Angeles. They were dressed alike in green satin princess style frocks with scoop necklines and tiny sleeves. Their shoes matched their dresses. The matron of honor wore a red satin headband topped with two red and white variegated camellias from which fell ribbon streamers. She carried a red satin muff covered with flowers similar to those on her headband. The bridesmaids' white headdresses and muffs were similar in style to those of the matron of honor and trimmed with white camellias.

Donald Tronstein of Los Angeles, the best man, and ushers John Cardoza of Berkeley and Richard Bloomer of San Francisco were law school classmates of the groom. Ushers Nathaniel Baylis of Menlo Park, the groom's brother-in-law, and Joseph Russell of Carmel and San Francisco completed the wedding party.

Mrs. Rossner, the bride's mother, attended the marriage in a dark green princess taffeta dress, a small veiled hat trimmed with red satin roses, black gloves, black and silver brocade shoes and a corsage of tiny green orchids.

Mrs. Frank Lloyd of Carmel, mother of the groom, witnessed the ceremony in a moss green organza dress with a shawl collar and unpressed pleats forming the full skirt. Her small hat of green velvet leaves trimmed with sprays of green, red and golden pearls matched her dress and shoes. Her corsage was similar to that of the bride's mother.

The reception following the ceremony was held in the Garden Room of the Bel-Air Hotel where the bride and groom, the mother of the bride and of the groom received the guests on a small platform on which stood the cake table in front of windows opening on gardened terraces. The groom's younger sisters, Lucinda and Mardi Lloyd, were in charge of the guest book.

After the bride and groom had cut their four-tiered cake the bride changed to a brown wool suit, small brown felt cloche hat trimmed with pheasant feathers and matching shoes and accessories before leaving with the groom on a honeymoon at an undisclosed destination.

The day after Christmas they will leave for Georgia, where the groom will report on January 4 at Fort Gordon for six months' Army Reserve duty as a second lieutenant. Following this they will return to California and plan eventually to settle on the Peninsula. The groom is an attorney who graduated from Boalt Hall at the University of California in June.

Art Show Winners

Two Carmel painters, Donna Seaver and Bruna Odello, were the winners in public judging of the art show at the Craft Studios on Friday afternoon. Donna Seaver's oil painting of Fisherman's Wharf won first place; Bruna Odello's oil of the Mission, second award.

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea as follows:

Section 1. That Section 281 of the Municipal Code be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 281. All members of the Recreation Commission shall be appointed by the City Council and shall serve without compensation. All members must be residents of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea or of the Carmel Unified School District. As a matter of general policy, but without limiting itself to do so, the City Council shall attempt to maintain the membership of the Recreation Commission so as to include one member of the Carmel-by-the-Sea City Council, one member of the Board of Trustees of the Carmel Unified School District, and three members-at-large, one of whom shall be a resident of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and one who shall be a resident of the Carmel Unified School District.

"Initially two members shall be appointed for one year, two members for two years, and one member for three years. At the expiration of the several terms of the original members, subsequent appointments shall all be for terms of three years. Members shall continue as members of the Commission after the expiration of their term until their successors are appointed.

"The Superintendent of Schools of the Carmel Unified School District, or his designated agent, shall be appointed to serve as ex-officio member, without vote."

Section 2. Section 283 of the Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 283. The Recreation Commission shall have power and authority to encourage, foster, facilitate, plan, and conduct recreation centers and recreational activities on such grounds or in such buildings as may be placed under its jurisdiction or made available to it, including the use of school facilities. They shall have power to conduct children's playgrounds, indoor and outdoor recreational activities, and in general to do any and all things necessary or proper for the establishment and development of a well-rounded recreational program. It shall have the power to recommend to the appropriate body the employment of leadership personnel or employees as may be deemed necessary. They shall have the power to recommend the purchase of such supplies and apparatus as may be in the judgment of the Commission necessary or proper for carrying on their recreational activities. The Commission shall be authorized to work with any other organizations with which the city may contract for the carrying out of recreational programs in whole or in part, and to render such assistance to any organizations or bodies as the City Council may from time to time direct, and to prepare and recommend such budget for recreation to the City Council as it may from time to time deem necessary."

Section 3. Section 284 is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 284. The Recreation Commission may accept all monies appropriated for that purpose by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea or the Carmel Unified School District, or from any other public body and all donations, legacies or bequests from any other source, and may expend or transfer such money to the appropriate city department or other agency for the purposes designated in the appropriation or gift."

Section 4. Statement of Urgency. This ordinance shall be deemed an urgency ordinance, a statement of the urgency being as follows:

That the immediate passage of this ordinance is necessary for the preservation of health and safety, in that the interruption of funds from the School District to the Carmel Youth Center will adversely affect the operation of the Youth Center; that the Youth Center provides a proper and suitable recreation program for the youth of the city and that the interruption of such funds pending the creation of a proper commission to accept them endangers the Youth Center program of said city, to the city's detriment.

Section 5. Effective Date. That this ordinance shall take effect upon its final passage and adoption.

Mrs. McElroy is the daughter of the late George Marion of Carmel, stage and film actor. She made her home here during the years her three children, Anne, George and Mary were growing up. On the Peninsula she appeared in many stage productions and was noted for her proficiency in comedy roles.

While here she visited her older daughter, Mrs. Anne Fry, and plans to spend Christmas with her son, George McElroy, and his family in San Leandro. She will also see her younger daughter, Mrs. Howard Williams (Mary) of Palos Verdes during the Christmas holidays.

Kruses Return From Abroad

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kruse, former owners of Oak Tree Lodge, are back in Carmel after a motor trip through Europe. Mrs. Kruse went abroad primarily to find a place in which her blind brother could live comfortably. Her search was rewarded when she found a home which was established by Dr. Albert Schweitzer before he became a medical missionary in Africa. The home is near Dr. Schweitzer's birthplace in the mountains of Alsace, "a most beautiful region of France which I had never visited," says Mrs. Kruse, a native of France.

Of her travels by car to Rome, Lourdes, Paris and through Austria, Mrs. Kruse remarks that it is an ideal way in which to explore and that she discovered many delightful areas off the beaten track of travel. However, she concludes, "I had heard that all of America wants to live in Carmel, and when I came home I knew why. Nothing, even in Europe compares to this town."

McCloud Carolers Tally Ho Inn Tree Win Xmas Contest

Two first prizes of $50 were awarded last night in the Carmel Business Association Christmas decoration contest. Gladys McCloud's Shop for Girls and Juniors on Ocean Avenue above San Carlos Street won first place for window decoration. The Tally Ho Inn on Monte Verde Street at Sixth Avenue was awarded first prize for outdoor decoration.

Second place and $25 was given to the Bluebird Restaurant on Ocean Avenue below Lincoln Street, and third place and $25 to the Party Carousel on San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues.

Honorable mention was awarded to the window of Kenneth Wood's Realty office at the corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street.

Judges were Mrs. Remo Scardigli, Cecil M. "Pop" Smith, Walt Pilot, Mrs. Marian Kreger and Mrs. Helen Burger. Only decorations officially entered in the Business Association contest were judged.

Unentered but worthy of commendation, the judges decided, were the succulent tree at the Garden Shop on Lincoln Street, the Cork 'N Bottle tree on Ocean Avenue, the Basket Shop tree on Lincoln Street and the Village Realty tree on Ocean Avenue. The judges liked the use of products of these businesses in their Christmas window decorations.

Mrs. McCloud's first award window contains a group of Dickens carolers created by Edith Plamondon of Carmel. The Tally Ho Inn has a large lighted tree outside, choristers on the roof, and a wall decoration of red poinsettias and greenery.

The second place Bluebird Restaurant window is centered by a stylized golden Christmas tree made from gilded pine cones. Third award window at the Party Carousel is all gold, with the tree constructed from artichoke blossoms.

A painting by Henry Pancher placed in the Kenneth Wood Realty office window won honorable mention.

Community Chest Contributions Are $136,000 To Date

Officers of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest announced today that the amount raised to date for 1960 is $136,000.00, which represents an increase of $10,000 over last year.

"The mop up by the Community Chest Commandos is continuing," said Colonel Chauncey Howland, chairman of the Chest Commandos, "there are still many who have not been solicited and our Commando teams will resume their activities Monday after Christmas."

President Rollo Payne's Christmas greeting thanked all who have given of their time and money to the Chest. "For by their unselfish generosity," he said, "they have provided services for the aged, the sick, the discouraged, and the hungry, and funds for the great character building Boy and Girl Scout organizations as well as a 'home' for our service men wherever they go." Chest President Payne urged all who have not given to the 1960 Chest Fund to do so between now and the first of the year. "It will make your Christmas happier and it will help to make 1960 a better year for someone else," he said.

Complaints Filed Against Youths After Home Fracas

A 17 year old Carmel boy was turned over to the Juvenile Court probation officer and Dustin Farnum, 19, and Robert Moore, 18, both of Carmel Valley, had complaints filed against them in Monterey Municipal Court by the district attorney's office yesterday after investigation by the Carmel Police Department of an incident at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Arley Smith on Saturday evening.

According to Mrs. Smith, she and her husband were watching television when the incident occurred and had no knowledge of the affair until about 20 or 30 boys noisily left their home. On investigating they found the 17 year old, accompanied by Moore, had allegedly entered their house and begun an altercation about a scratched car. The younger boy allegedly hit Tom Stanford, a guest in the Smith's home, injuring him so that he later had to have a face wound stitched at the hospital. The third youth, Farnum, allegedly brandished a knife at the Smith's son, Craig, after entering their home with a large group of youths.

On Monday Mrs. Smith reported the incident to Police Chief Clyde Klaumann. Investigation resulted in Mr. Smith and G. Lansing Stanford, father of the injured youth, entering complaints against the three ringleaders.

Two other youths, David Vincent and John Ley, were guests in the Smith home at the time of the incident.

Ley took Stanford to the hospital for medical attention following the disturbance at the Smith home.

Rice Abundance Saved Thailand From Reds Col. Waikart Believes

Thailand is a friend of ours, a pro-western outpost in the Communist East. It is mysterious, fun-loving, tropical, a rare blend of the sophisticated and the primitive, and a good place to live.

Lt. Col. William H. Waikart, whose informal opinions these are, has recently returned to this country with his family from Bangkok, where he spent two years on assignment with the Joint United States Military Assistance Group.

As advisor to the Royal Thai Army Logistical College, Col. Waikart took a course in Thai language, then was afforded very little opportunity to use it, since the Thais preferred to sharpen their own English by practicing it on him. This is only one of the manifestations of enthusiasm for American and British culture, the colonel says.

One of the primary reasons, he believes, why Communism has never really got off the ground in Thailand is that the little kingdom, one of the SEATO nations, is surfeited with good, inexpensive food. A nation of farmers, it exports large supplies of rice.

As a JUSMAG advisor, Col. Waikart worked with military leaders of the Thai Army, helping them set up their own logistical college.

The Waikart home in Bangkok, city of klongs and wahts, samlars, saffron-garbed monks and Little League baseball, afforded them an ideally pleasant sojourn in a land the family grew to love.

A household staff, necessary because of the complexity of Thai life, is available at rates of about $15 to $20 per month for a gardener, the same for a wash amah, and a little more for a cook.

This "complexity" includes garden compounds full of rapidly growing flora no westerner could handle, a tricky charcoal stove in a kitchen building separate from the house proper, and no laundry facilities as we know them.

Mrs. Waikart shopped in famous Sam Peng Alley; Bill Junior, nearly 11, attended first a parochial, then an international school with Thai teachers, and the Waikarts vacationed on the Gulf of Siam, taking trips to points in the fascinating interior of Thailand.

A philosophy of "mei pen lai" pervades the thinking of the predominantly Buddhist country. This translates roughly into something like "apres nous la deluge" or perhaps even "que sera sera."

It is this passive abandon which makes the Thais, as a rule, generous, considerate and at ease.

Politically, of course, Thailand is a monarchy, although military figures occupy key governmental posts.

Col. Waikart left his Siamese assignment in late summer and brought his family to Carmel when he became ordnance officer for the Second Logistical Command at Fort Ord. Bill is now a fifth grader at River School.

Now far from the floating markets and temple gongs, they like sharing their memories with new friends here with an eye to recommending Thailand as a vacation spot.

On the materialistic side, not counting the goodwill Westerners can generate by visiting there, it is a mecca for those with an appreciation for Thai silk, precious stones and certain varieties of antiques.

An Arlington, Va., family originally, the Waikarts have had other military assignments in Alaska and Washington, D. C.

City Officials Tell Santa Claus Their Wants For Carmel

getting along fine. If Santa could get us the parking lot, we'd be happy."

Bill Askew would like a little help from Santa with a big and unpleasant problem. The garbage cans at the beach are for sandwich wrappers, beer cans, picnic left-overs. But residents are using them for home garbage, and not fresh home garbage at that. The street department empties them daily, and they are over-flowing.

"It's a serious problem. If people just wouldn't . . . everything would be fine. We haven't any other problems," concluded the Street Superintendent.

Fire Chief Bob Smith asks for these gifts for the fire department: "That the people be more conscious of fire hazards; that they refrain from following the fire engines to fires, and refrain from phoning the fire department when the siren goes off."

Last fire there were 50 calls from people who wanted to know where the fire was so they could go there and watch, he said, and at a recent fire there was such congestion of cars which had followed the first truck that the second truck couldn't get through.

Santa asked us if we would care to deliver the gifts for him, and we said, sure, if he would bag up appreciation, awareness, understanding, refraining from, and standing up to be counted, and pack the parking lots, trees, zoning ordinances, parks, more revenue and less taxes, the 50-star flag and the all night coffee shop in his sleigh.

So, late tonight, if a parking lot lands on your roof, don't be alarmed. It's just me, having a little trouble with Donner and Blitzen.
